In 1996, HMS was established as a small company developing hardware and software to earn a little extra money during computer science studies. In keeping with the principle "You must try the impossible to reach the possible", HMS quickly gained a great reputation in Germany. Now, we are an internationally operating solution provider, satisfying customers throughout Europe and the United States.

Broadcasting is an ever-changing business. Today's technology is old after the blink of an eye. If you aim to be at the cutting-edge, you must not be afraid to swim against the current.

We are your partner for reliable solutions from ingest to playout, from MAM to channel graphics.

Being one step ahead means change, means flexibility, means communication. It is our motivation to master the technical progress as well as the associated challenges and to incorporate it into our products.

We accomplish those fascinating tasks for and together with our customers.

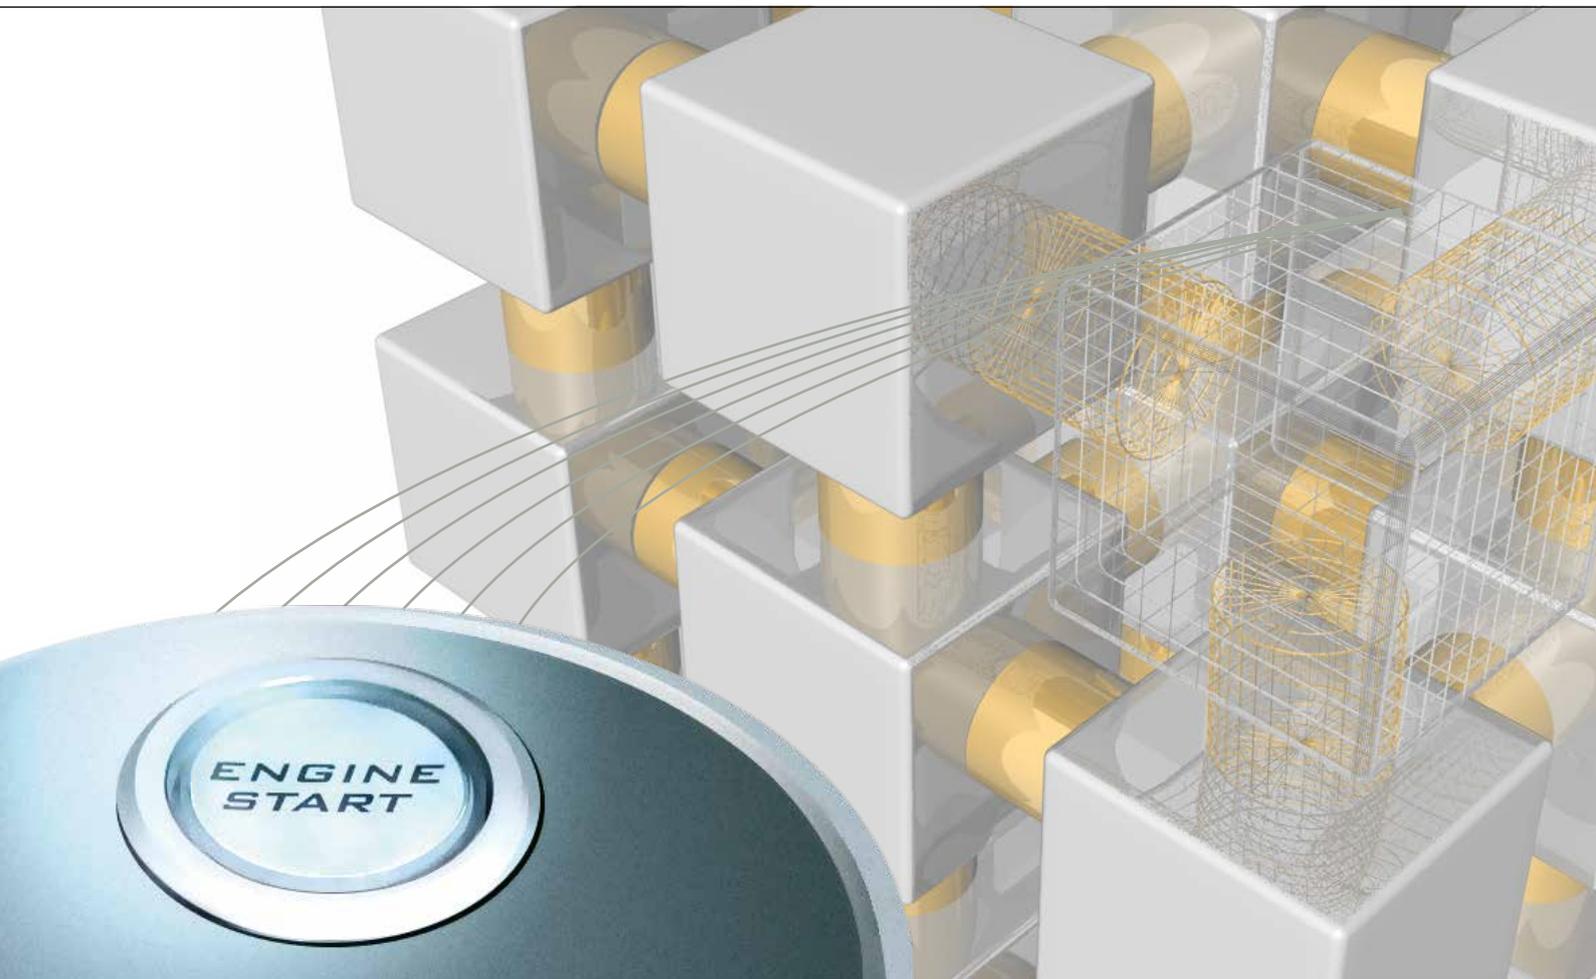

Our commitment is rewarded by you, which is shown by our steadily growing customer base.

Over 17 years in project business have shaped and matured HMS. You are welcome to take advantage of our know-how.

Find yourself in good company!

We develop broadcast solutions for TV stations, network operators and content providers.

Our main product, the broadcast automation suite "DiSA", is flexible enough to meet the needs of all customers from major national TV broadcasters to small local channels. 24/7 operation can be taken for granted. With its various interfaces, DiSA can be integrated in many existing broadcast environments.

Besides that, we offer solutions for real-time video streaming, legal recording, digital signage and video-on-demand (VOD).

Why are HMS solutions of higher value and more sophisticated than others?

Because we keep an eye on the big picture when solving your problems. HMS solutions are well thought-out to the smallest detail.

Why do HMS solutions suit to that many different kinds of customers?

Because we offer individual solutions that perfectly suit to the demands of every customer. Even our CEO understands all the technical details from beginning to end.

That makes it much easier to understand what our customers really need.

Why does HMS offer more value for its price?

Because you are never left alone with an HMS solution. We don't just provide reliable software and hardware. We are always at your side, giving our best that you can concentrate on your business. We think and work networked – dynamically and efficient.
